Ma'am,

I can assure you, with total conviction, that I have absolutely no idea what this is about.

I do not know what I am alleged to have said. I do not know the circumstances surrounding when this is alleged to have taken place. I do not know why I would have been going into Mia's cubicle either. It relates to something that is alleged to have been said two months ago, in early August. I speak to Mia when I have some reason or need to do so, which is only occasionally. I have no recollection of ever even seeing Roberta near her cubicle.

I simply have no idea about this.

It does not, however, surprise me.

There is, as you know, a history of false allegations being made against me, beginning with the matter which you yourself followed up on 14 March this year.

Only last week I was the subject of another complaint; for failing to forward an email, which was apparently somehow in violation of a protocol which does not exist. This was brought to Dan Wilson's attention, for him to bring it to my attention; which means that someone was unhappy about my communication skills but was (Firstly) unable to point out exactly what rule, guideline or protocol I might actually have broken, and (Secondly) unwilling to communicate their dissatisfaction directly to me, and all of this was in respect of something that made no practical difference to anything anyway. It was another example of a grievance desperately looking for a subject.

Little bells should have started ringing....very loudly by now.....

Next week, I look forward to having to explain why I was wearing two odd socks, using an unauthorised pencil or something equally worthy of a Royal Commission of Enquiry.

RETALIATION, contrary to ST/SGB/2005/21?

No?

This nonsense never ends.

HARRASSMENT, contrary to ST/SGB/2008/5?

Can I please be told precisely what it is that I am alleged to have said to Mia?

And the answer, of course, was that nobody could tell me because nobody - not even Mia - actually HEARD whatever it was that I am alleged to have said.... but they just ASSUMED it would have been rude.

Apparently not....

If I had spoken to Mia at all on the day in question, and I may have done, i really don't know.... How does anyone know that what I had said was not that I was going out to have a coffee?

Rgds

Dear Peter:

Ms. Baldini has made the following remark in a memo to Dan Wilson dated 17 August:

In addition, last week I passed Peter going into Mia's cubicle and told me. I did not hear clearly, but was told later. I just let you know of Peter's unprofessional and hostile behaviour.

Peter, in order to assess this situation, what did you actually say, if anything, on your way into Mia's cubicle.

Your response to this question, without discussing this with anyone, would be appreciated as quickly as possible.

Many thanks,
Carman
